The growing boy should be taught that tobacco is hurtful to him physically and mentally, and should be properly trained by his parents to believe that what they tell him is true and for his ultimate welfare. This places the responsibility of initiating all such reforms where it very properly belongs. Mere punishment after a habit is formed is commencing the lesson at the wrong end.

There is force in it not novelty in this remark by the New Haven Leader, says the Hartford Times: "If there is any distinction in criminality, that of the bribe-giver is greater than that of the bribe-taker, and civic corruption can never be swept away until its sources are rooted out." Perhaps if ex-Governor Bulkeley were consulted on this subject he might be able to add something that would make the distinction easier to distinguish.

In Germany tramps are set to work, unless they can make satisfactory explanation for their idleness, and the work they are made to do is not so easy but that they will try to find something more to their liking when they are released. Our law makers will be obliged to take some measures to keep this class from troubling honest, industrious people, especially the farmers. The number who are willing to work is surprisingly small, and the stories they tell to excite sympathy are mostly untrue, so that but few feed them willingly.

The depositor in a savings bank gets whatever the trustees can earn in the way of income, but the bank's most important service to the depositor is securely keeping his principal for him. Hence precautions are taken to identify each depositor by not only securing his signature, but by recording his answers to certain questions about himself and family and requiring answers to these same questions when he may or may not personating him calls to draw out money. It may be that the bank employees need to move about more quickly, for the routine which cannot be dispensed should be done with the least possible delay.

General Gordon, a British officer who has written a book on the Sikhs, the celebrated fighters of India, says that the signs by which you may know a Sikh are these: He never cuts his hair, but wears his beard looped up over his ears; he never smokes nor touches tobacco, because that is the privilege of the Mohammedan, but he is allowed to drink spirits and is a great consumer of opium. Finally, he must have about his person the five K's, which General Gordon thus enumerates: Kes (long hair of the head), as the Sikh must never cut his hair or beard; kangri (comb), to secure the hair tied up in a knot on top of the head; kacheh (breaches reaching to the knee); kard (knife), and kirpan (sword).

Even though President Roosevelt did sweep the country, there are a few people in various parts of the country that cannot even tolerate his picture. An incident that happened in Baltimore a short time ago promises to disrupt one of the leading clubs of that city. It happened at a woman's club meeting, too, so that the blame cannot be attached to a lot of hot headed politicians. The incident marked the lecture of Prof. Kokkie Mortimoro of Tokio, delivered before the club on November 16. Prof. Mortimoro to illustrate his lecture presented a superb lot of photographs of Japan and Manchuria, of the mikado, the czar and finally President Roosevelt. When the president's portrait was thrown upon the screen there was a burst of hisses from one side of the darkened room, and the demonstration was continued until the lecturer removed the slide. The lights were turned on and more than half the ladies at once withdrew, expressing their indignation over the insult to the chief magistrate of the nation. The president at once declared the entertainment at an end.

Professional promoters of education and friends of the schools outside of the ranks of professional workers are occasionally moved to exploit views which are at least novel if not radical. The idea behind these views is that a shaking up is a good thing for teachers to keep them from getting into ruts, says an exchange. Recently it was affirmed that women are less competent than men to train boys in manliness and courage. The pros and cons in this discussion were suggestive and doubtless helpful, like most discussions undertaken in good faith. Recently the ideal for a model modern teacher has been outlined. He must be up to date in everything, we are told—a good mixer, able to dance, play pool, billiards and other games, must be a church member, interest himself in local public affairs, be magnetic, a society man and generally get out of the beaten tracks of old time pedagogy and at the same time command respect and obedience in the class room. The idea of what a school education should do for the pupil has changed with the times. Drilling in the three R's is no longer the sine qua non. Perhaps the increase of college bred men and women in the community creates a demand for school training which shall mold character and manners as well as drill the mind in book lore. A teacher wields a vast influence and stands next to the parent, if not ahead, in the young and growing mind. Up to date ideas and manners are essentials if the teacher would hold the lasting respect of those whom authority places under his or her leadership. At the same time the primary idea of a school is a place for lessons, and generally the brighter scholars have an influence upon the mass. These scholars demand that the teachers shall be capable at the desk and never at a loss in up to date knowledge. The teacher must be a pedagogue or lose ground. To hold the teacher of the past up to ridicule in comparing the old school with the new is unfair in the sense that formerly the compensation was too low to induce the best talent to devote a lifetime to teaching. This phase has happily changed. The profession is fairly well paid. Recently four employees in the civil service of a metropolitan city resigned their places, ranging in salary from $1,500 to $2,500 a year, to take positions in schools. Perhaps they had natural aptitude for school work, but the incident shows that the profession of teaching is no longer used as a stepping stone merely, but is a field for ambition and enterprise. This is as it should be, to hold in the ranks the fully up to date man especially. The more up to date he is the higher will be his aspirations for his own welfare. He must be human, we are told, if he would become a factor in the community, and if he is that he will reflect the characteristics of the people among whom he labors. The teacher of the past was to a certain extent a martyr to the cause of education, a situation that would be unfair with the modern idea of the school.

HEARD IN PASSING

The birth of the czarvitch was a godsend to the Emperor of Russia in more than one way. In the case of Finland it "saved his face" to make a series of surrenders that the policy of his Von Plehve had forced on him as the alternative to a revolution.

The New York court of appeals has declared unconstitutional the law which prohibits a contractor from employing his men more than eight hours a day on city, county or state work. Only one judge dissented from the opinion, but the others reached the conclusion by different routes. They found the law unconstitutional in that it deprives an individual of his property without due process of law and two on the ground of precedent in the Rogers case.—Hartford Times.

As a temporary arrangement it is satisfactory to have gates at grade crossings, provided there is a watchman at each crossing to lower the gates and provided the watchman does not sleep. But such an arrangement should be only temporary. Death and serious accident are so frequent at grade crossings, even when the most conscientious vigilance prevails, that officials, companies and the public are ultimately compelled by a regard for human life to get rid of the grade crossings by putting the road above the steam railway tracks or these tracks above the road.

Clam Cocktail.

This oyster cocktail sounds ever so good, and there is no reason why it should not be made with clams. In the center of the plate, with the half shells arranged about it, was a green pepper. The top had been sliced off and replaced to form the lid of a cup made by scooping out the inside of the pepper. Inside was the cocktail sauce, in which the oysters or clams were to be dipped.—N. Y. Post.

Advantage of Being King.

King Alfonso declares he will work only eight hours a day. If there is any royal business on the table at the moment the clock strikes the quitting hour, the little king drops his crown and his mace and the unfinished business has to go over until the next day. There are some advantages, after all, in being a king.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Drought Costs Big Sum.

Weather can often be reduced to figures. The last Australian drought was calculated to have cost sheep-farmers the enormous sum of twenty-five millions, and the rain which followed it to have been worth half a million an inch. A day's rain in midsummer has cost the Midlands nearly $100,000. At the same time compensating advantages will be derived by other industries.—London Tit-Bits.

NEW YORK FASHIONS

Pattern For Infant's Round Yoke Dress Designed by Martha Dean

A simple design for a baby dress is here shown in sheer nainsook. The skirt is gathered to a round yoke, which may be made of tucking, inserting or all over embroidery. Made of plain material it forms a good foundation for a bit of handwork. Tiny French knots arranged in circles or a spray of flowers give a dainty finish. The yoke may be edged by a ruffle of fine embroidery or not, just as one prefers. For a dainty little dress for everyday or best wear this style is to be recommended. The materials usually employed are nainsook, dimity, linen and Persian mull. Val lace and insertion are used in preference to any other kind. Pattern No. 453. Infant's size only.

DIRECTIONS FOR ORDERING

Send 10 cents to this office, give number of this pattern, No. 453, and state size desired. It will then be sent to you by mail postpaid. Be sure to write plainly and always give full address. Several days must be allowed for delivery of pattern.

A Poem for Today

OVER THE HILLS

By Eugene Field

OVER the hills and far away
A little boy steals from his morning play,
And under the blossoming apple tree
He lies and dreams of the things to be;
Of battles fought and of victories won,
Of wrongs of earth and of great deeds done—
Of the valor that he shall prove some day,
Over the hills and far away—
Over the hills and far away!

Over the hills and far away
It's O for the toll the living day!
But it mattered not to the soul adame
With a love for riches and power and fame!
On, O man! while the sun is high—
On to the yonder joy that lie
Yonder where blazes the noon of day!
Over the hills and far away—
Over the hills and far away!

Over the hills and far away,
An old man lingers at close of day;
Now that his journey is almost done,
His battles fought and his victories won—
The old-time honesty and truth,
The trustfulness and the friends of youth,
Home and mother—where are they?
Over the hills and far away!
Over the hills and far away!

The Soul, Not the Brain,
Is the Thinking Principle

By Dr. JOSEPH SIMMS of New York, Famous Pathologist

THE soul is the thinking principle, and at death it moves out of the corporate body, and then the finest brain ceases to think, because IT NEVER WAS THE ORGAN OF THOUGHT. I have willed my brain to Dr. Spitzka when I get through with it. I expect to use it about ten years longer. Dr. Spitzka said he would like to have it as soon as possible, but that he did not want it until I have no further use for it.

The brain is a HEAT PRODUCER. The thermometer shows that it is hotter than the blood; hence the largest brains of men are found in cold climates, where more heat is required TO SUSTAIN LIFE. The brain also secretes a cerebro spinal fluid which gives life to the body, passing through EVERY nerve in the body, even into the skin.

DOCTORS HAVE BEEN TEACHING THAT THE BRAIN IS THE SEAT OF THE MIND BECAUSE THEY WERE TAUGHT THAT WAY. IT IS NOT TRUE.

THOUGHT SECTION
MEN WERE DEER

One of the most remarkable hunting accidents reported thus far this year occurred near Fort Francis, when hunters fired on a couple of section men engaged in operating a hand car, under the impression that they were deer. The hunters were Captain Reedman and Hillard Martin, and one of the section men named Joseph Beaudro was seriously wounded.

Night was closing in at the time of the accident, and the pumping motion of the men led the hunters to believe that what they saw was a small herd of deer. News of the accident reached Duluth yesterday.

Captain Reedman and Mr. Martin were out late in the afternoon near a gravel pit alongside the main line of the Canadian Northern road. There is a spur track that runs into the pit. Suddenly the hunters saw the section men on the car emerge from the pit at a lively clip. In the gathering gloom the hunters could not see very distinctly, but the peculiar motion of the men could be made out, and the hunters fired on them with never a thought that it was deer that they saw.

The section men threw themselves to the ground as soon as they realized that they were being fired upon. The bullet that struck Beaudro shattered one of his elbows, and then entered the body, lodging near the spine above the hips. The wounded man was hurried to the hospital at Fort Francis. His recovery is uncertain.

Captain Reedman and Mr. Martin hurried around the switch and up the spur looking for their game, and were very much surprised and remorseful when they discovered their terrible mistake. The section men had gone into the pit to load some wood on the hand car, and were returning when the hunters fired on them.—Duluth News Tribune.

MOTOR LEAGUE BUSY.

All prospects of a consolidation of the American Automobile association with the American Motor league having faded, the league officials have again begun the active work of recruiting that within a year made the league a formidable body and larger in personal membership than the A. A. A.

F. A. Egan has been elected secretary to succeed Robert Stillson, and the work of compiling touring routes for members is now progressing. There are now in hand map plates sufficient almost to name three separate route books covering the eastern, western and middle districts of New York state. There have been prepared also ten outline maps of routes between the important towns in ten states, namely: New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa and Michigan. One of these maps will be sent to any automobilist who will volunteer to supply detailed information concerning any route or routes within his state.
